You better watch out because anacondas are around. That is exactly what we will be learning about. Are you ready to learn about the fascinating reptile called an Anaconda? Anacondas are huge reptiles. They are actually as long as a school bus. Some even bigger. Can you believe that? It's insane. They can weigh 550 pounds and they're as long as 30 feet.

There's more than one type of Anaconda. They are regular anacondas and Green Anacondas. Regular anacondas are light and dark brown. There are spots all over the anaconda. There are spots like a dalmatian on the top and on the side it looks like a cheetah. An anaconda is the largest snake in the world

Habitats

I can't wait because we are going to learn about the anacondas habitat. Just in case you don't know what a habitat is, it's where you live. They live in trees and water in the Amazon rainforest in Brazil, in South America. Anacondas are mostly underwater waiting to eat their prey.

Oh we have got to because anacondas are near by and they look starving. Lets learn about the anacondas diets. They can eat just about anything. Once an anaconda eat something big like a Jaguar, it will not eat again until it digests the Jaguar, that can take a whole entire week to digest.

Also on the menu for anacondas are black caiman, capybara, turtles, deer and pigs.

Oh no! watch out! Anacondas threats are coming, like animals and humans. Anacondas biggest threat is humans because they're cutting down trees and trying to kill them just for their skin to make robes, dresses, skirts, pants and leggings. This is why humans are their biggest threat. Anacondas Animal

Threats are black caiman, and Jaguars.
